

The "I" of Writing

What are the things I know well in this world?

I love to study greek mythology. It helps me escape from the normal world to Mt. Olympus, a world of gods, goddesses, nymphs, centaurs, and much more. In mythology there are tales of bravery and love that are varied numerous times by different generations + cultures. I especially love to hear about Artemis, the goddess of the moon, hunt, + child birth, and Appollo, the god of music, poetry, + the sun.

They're the twins of Zeus, the king, and Leto.

I love things you don't normally see. These stories are highly out of the ordinary, slightly outrageous, and in a sense just plain bizarre! I know a lot about this + read tons of books. This topic, in a way, can go into astrology, which I am starting to study as well. People who like fantasies should definitely check this out.
